

Abstract

According to the invention, a connection between a base 5 transceiver station and a subscriber station is allocated a transmission rate for signal transmission from the base transceiver station to the subscriber station on the basis of a connection-specific level of path damping.

10 Fig. 2